Glenview School Children Entertain Parents - Teachers

Tuesday afternoon the regular date set for the Parent-Teachers' association, children of the primary rooms and members of the literary club gave a pretty little Christmas program in honor of the occasion.

The school hall was prettily decorated and the seats were filled with members and friends of the new organization.

Mrs. Maude Bartling, the president, called the meeting to order and reversed the order of business by postponing the short routine meeting until the children's program was over.

Virginia Carper, president of the literary club, extended a welcome to the visitors in behalf of the club. The little Christmas plays were well given and much appreciated. In addition to the plays the club sang several Christmas songs.

Following the program the association held a short meeting.

Glenview's First Community Tree

The first community tree will light up the Fountain Square this Yuletide.

It is sponsored by the Glenview Chamber of Commerce with the consent of the Village council and placed on village property on Glenview avenue.

The tree, a beautiful bushy evergreen has been set on a platform in the middle of the village lawn and will bear a real Christmas greeting to Glenview and all visitors.

The committee of the Chamber has made plans for a program for the day following Christmas to which the children are particularly invited.

It was thought by Chief J. V. Muller and the committee in charge that the children would have the pleasure of the new skating pond during their vacation but unless Old Winter puts in a real appearance the plans of the Chamber of Commerce in establishing the rink may not materialize.

Let adjoining Wyatt & Coons office is being put into readiness so that the first zero weather will be followed by the flooding of the space.

New Trierites Play Santa to Needy Ones

The New Trier high school pupils have been enjoying the entire week for vacation and holiday preparations. School closed last Friday.

The last day of school was spent in making up the annual Christmas boxes for deserving families.

Each adviser room plays Santa Claus to some family needing assistance. Clothes, provisions, money, toys and Christmas goodies are distributed by students themselves. In some instances the same family is adopted each year. With 1,400 pupils divided into groups of not more than thirty to the group, a great field can be covered in Good Fellowship work and a visit to the offices of advisers on that last day was bound to kindle or intensify a "Love Thy Neighbor as Thyself" spirit. Real kindly Christmas feeling went into the wrapping of parcels, the dressing of dolls, etc.

Neatly wrapped parcels with arm clothing, gifts of toys, books and games and food found their way to New Trier from Glenview homes where there were no high school students, to help supply a family with nine children under 16 years of age.

Royal Neighbors Celebrate Anniversary

The Royal Neighbors had an anniversary celebration last Thursday evening in the school hall. It was their 20th anniversary and members from Northbrook, Deerfield, DesPlaines and Wilmette attended. Several new candidates were initiated.

The installation of newly elected officers will occur in January.

Babes Have Christmas Party Tuesday P. M.

Mrs. Chas. Palmgren was hostess Tuesday afternoon at a delightful children's party for Cradle Roll members of the Congregational Sunday school.

The party was held in the hall of the church. There was a tree, refreshments and gifts for all. The cradle roll party has been an institution of the church for years and is looked forward to each year as one of the crowning features of Christmas under the direction of Mrs. Palmgren who has been an active worker with the children of the church.

Now that her health once more permits her to participate in the holiday celebration makes the event the more appreciated.

Methodist Church Notes

Mr. Emory Blean is in charge of the Christmas tree at the church Friday night at 7:30. Santa Claus has been requested to be present. The children will give the program. You know what that means.

The Christmas Cantata will be given Sunday night at 7:30. We are sorry that it had to be postponed from Wednesday night, as advertised. Mr. Stanton, was ill Monday with bronchitis, and we knew that it would not be safe for him to use his throat by Wednesday. You will get the benefit of an extra rehearsal which the postponement makes possible.

In the morning Sunday, the subject of the sermon will be "Gifts of the Wise Men," and the choir will render an anthem: "From the Eastern Mountains" by G. Thring, telling of the coming of the Wise Men.

Mrs. Bartling deserves much credit for the way in which the pageant was produced last Sunday night. The beautiful story of "Why the Chimes Rang," was impressively portrayed. As one person said, "You'd never know from the smoothness of the production that there was any work in preparing it."

About $35 was given in the offering for the children of the Lake Bluff Orphanage.

We might tell you some of the compliments which the singing of the young people's choir evoked, but we are sure you would enjoy the singing more than the compliments. You would not be satisfied anyhow, unless you heard them.

NO ROOM AT THE INN

I see a gentle cavalcade approaching Bethlehem: A humble man, his gentle wife, and donkeys bearing them.

They drive up to the village inn, weary but not forlorn, seeking a covert from the world where a baby may be born.

I hear a gruff refusal, and as the keeper stands, I see behind him multitudes of folks from many lands.

Making vain excuses in a multitude of ways, while from a nearby stable come friendly neighs and brays.

And while a careless, selfish throng to Mary pays no heed, the lowly beasts of burden respond to a mother's need.

I see the Lord Christ Jesus as at the door he stands, with tender entreaties, with Heaven in his hands;

He's seeking for admission that the world is slow to give; a home in which he may be born, a heart in which to live.

I spend my years in hovels, with tawdry furnishings, while Jesus waits to make my heart the palace of a king.

He walks the earth the same today, as lonely now as then, the only home he's ever sought was in the hearts of men.

His call, so still, so constant, I hear it o'er life's din. He waits till we request him to change our humble inn.

Into a dwelling, permanent, where love makes him a home, Where God baptizes all with peace as vast as Heaven's dome.

E. Lester Stanton, 1926.

Meaning of Pageant.

This pageant is to provide a fitting service for a "Living Christmas," to impress by a plain object lesson that our Lord's birthday should bring a new inspiration to self, surrender and service. To bring white gifts and service. To bring substance. They are called white gifts, because they should be given with a white, that is, pure heart.

Already the Sunday school classes are planning what the special designation for their white gifts shall be, and everybody is invited and encouraged to join the Sunday school in bringing white gifts or Christmas Eve for some special purpose.

Services Christmas Day and Sunday will be in German. Christmas Day we celebrate Lord's supper. If there will be 5 or 6 reporting that they would like to have it in English, we will comply to their wish and have it also in English.

Some of our young people will attend service next Sunday at the new mission at 2444 Pratt Ave. By their visit they hope to help stimulate those members in their new undertaking.

Young People's League monthly meeting with election of officers, Dec. 28.

Smith's Lead in Phone List Numerical Race

Mr. Smith is one of the best known individuals in the United States, but Mr. Brown is a close second, with Mr. Brown right on his heels.

At least so it would seem from a recent roll call of the clans which was made by some one who conducted a nation-wide search of city and telephone directories. As a result of this study it was found that there are at least 1,300,000 Smiths in America, followed by 1,000,000 Johnsons and 750,000 Browns. Then come the Williamses and the Joneses with 655,000 and 558,000 respectively. The Millers, according to this unofficial census, produce 628,000 and the Davises 538,000.

While the foregoing are the figures of the leading families for the country as a whole, their order in certain cities is somewhat different. For example, in New York City the Cohens have very nearly eliminated the Smiths from first place, while in Boston the Sullivans have reached second place, and the Murphys are in fifth.

In Cincinnati the Meyers rank third. It is interesting to note that the Smiths also lead the Coolidges in Washington, D. C., in the latest telephone book by 998 votes to 4, but that the name Calvin Coolidge is not listed. However, most people in Washington know who he is and where he can be located.

Next Week's Pictures At Arlington Theatre

"LONDON"

What happens when a girl of the London slums is suddenly transported to beautiful Mayfair and a life of ease? No longer need she wonder where the next meal is coming from; whether there'll be a bed to sleep in; or if she'll have any clothes to wear on the morrow. Instead, she finds herself in a land where fashionable restaurants and night clubs are "all the rage"; a soft downy bed is hers; servants galore; and as for clothes, only Parisian modistes will do. Is she happy? Does she find contentment or love?

At the Arlington Theatre Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 27 and 28.

"LADIES AT PLAY"

"Ladies at Play" is the intriguing title of the first National picture which comes to the Arlington Theatre Thursday and Friday Dec. 30 and 31, with Doris Kenyon and Lloyd Hughes in the featured roles.

Sparkling comedy, good-natured satire, thrills, suspense, surprises, and even little touches of pathos combine to make "Ladies at Play" a real comedy cocktail, and one that the whole family can see and enjoy.

Additional Arlington Heights Local Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Wieszman Report Delightful Three Month Trip to Europe

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wieszman and son who have traveled thru Europe for the past three months have returned and relate a most wonderful and beautiful trip, with marvelous scenery.

Mrs. Wieszman left for Germany July 24, 1926, and her first stop was at Barauschweig, where she visited for over four weeks, arriving there on the Steamer Munchen the North German Lloyd, for four weeks she stayed with her parents at Munich. She then traveled through the Alps to visit several other relatives at Berchtesgaden the wonderful Konigsee then several days at Salzburg, from there to Vienna where several days of great remembrance were spent, to Budapest, and Tennes, Romania where her husband surprised her greatly at his parents home on September 16. A pleasant surprise it was for Mrs. Wieszman and the happy family visited there for four weeks during the month of September.

From there they started on a tour towards home and traveled over the tops of the Semmering, a large chain of mountains, from there to Vienna to Graz, then thru the Alps on a different route, stopping at the most important places. Through the beautiful Mittenwald they took the train which was run by a large cable, to a height of 8,500 feet above sea level, crossing the boundary line of Austria and Germany, where the only place that they were not searched after landing from the peak. The train ran from one boundary into another, so that two sets of conductors had to be in service, first Austria and then Germany.

Mr. and Mrs. Wieszman visited a great many places of notable mention such as the summer home of Emperor Francis Joseph a real opera at the Vienne house, where they enjoyed the opera circus princess it being the 450 performance.

The scenery of the Alps was both beautiful and marvelous, with its gorgeous colorings. They went sight seeing in large busses and were glad to make the acquaintance of many American people they met. The music was wonderful, with the outdoor gardens.

Several American movies were being shown such as Harold Lloyd, Douglas Fairbanks, Robin Hood, and Charley Chaplin's new picture. Although the prices were very high from 2 to 3 dollars a seat.

A most enjoyable trip with water as calm and clear as glass Mrs. Wieszman reports while on her way across.

Mr. Wieszman reports a most terrible storm, as it was during the Florida tornado that he was on the ship and they had lost three days in traveling across.

Coming home a beautiful and happy trip is reported.

Making many new friends and an interest cargo of 12,000 beautiful Harz canaries about 200 monkeys and almost that many parrots. The service they received on this 3,600 miles across the ocean was very good, but there's "no place like home," and they were very glad to get back to America.

Mrs. Insull Richest Actress in the World

Mrs. Insull, now appearing at the Studebaker theatre, Chicago, in the new play "Dice of God" enjoys the distinction of being the world's wealthiest actress. The financial power to which she allied herself when she married Samuel Insull, the multimillionaire public utility magnate of Chicago, brought her everything that money could buy. In addition to that, she has a large fortune in her own right.

Besides their town home at 1100 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, the Insulls built Hawthorn Farms, a million dollar country place at Libertyville, Illinois.

While her only son, Samuel Insull, Jr., was being educated at Yale, Mrs. Insull developed a hobby for gardening that almost amounted to a passion.

At Hawthorn Farms, which is an Italian villa with extensive grounds, including a couple of artificial lakes and various other costly landscape improvements, she was given an opportunity to indulge her great love for flowers and shrubbery. In the summer it is said she keeps fifty trained gardeners busy carrying out her orders.

Mrs. Insull has the reputation of being the most temperamental gardener in the world. Guests, who have been away for a few weeks or even days, rub their eyes with astonishment on returning. They are quite likely to find that a stately grove of pines has been uprooted and replaced by a lily pool. This in turn may quickly be junked in favor of a pergola. After several more experiments the mistress of Hawthorn Farms is quite likely to exclaim:

"I think my first idea was the best. Put that grove right back exactly as it was."

And back it goes regardless of what it costs.

They Never Could Print Almanacs That Way

In the United States telephone directories are issued at time at regular periods of the year, but this is not true of all foreign countries.

In France, for example, where the telephone system is owned and controlled by the government, the 1925 telephone directory was not delivered until 1926.

The delay in getting out the 1925 French telephone directory was ascribed first to the fact that there were no funds available to print it, as the budget for the year was not passed until six months after it should have been and the money could not be spent until it had been appropriated. Then, when the funds became available, it took two months for the proofreading of the volume and another two months for the National Printing Office to print it, with the result that it did not come into the hands of the people until another year had rolled around.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Von Harz entertained one hundred relatives, neighbors and friends at a delightful silver wedding anniversary at their home on Sunday, December 19.

The entire residence was beautifully decorated with silver and holiday colors. Rev. Voeks gave an appropriate address and blessing to this occasion after which a five course dinner was served in the beautifully decorated dining room with silver wedding cake set before the honored bride and groom.

Cakes for the small ones and cards for the tall ones were enjoyed afternoon and evening. Later in the evening a two course luncheon was served on small card tables. The honored couple were presented with lovely gifts.

Wind or weather made no difference to the guests and time for leaving came all too soon to break up the merriment. Everybody departed for home wishing them many more years of wedded bliss.

Farmers in several counties in Illinois are excited by advertisements appearing in Farm Bureau bulletins, to anticipate the arrival of the corn borer by seeing to it that their dairy herds are sufficient to tide them over the period of decreasing land values when the borer arrives.

"No country, community and few individuals have started milking cows through choice. They were forced into it," the advertisement states.

River Grove Dept.

The entertainments given by the children of St. Gertrude's and St. Cyprian's school, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings was a splendid affair. It was the Christmas closing and farewell to St. Gertrude's of the River Grove children of all grades. Rev. Hurkman played Santa to the children Wednesday.

The standing of the bowling league will be published next week. Watch for River Grove's boosted week. Particulars later.

At a special meeting of the village board it was learned that the village attorney could ascertain no definite remedy for the uneven distribution of sewer and water assessments for the part of town across the river where sewer and water have just been installed. Complaints regarding these assessments should have been made before they were given to the court for confirmation. The bills were given to the board by the West Side Improvement club, organized for the civic improvement of the part of town west of the river.

A stark snowdrift was given Mrs. McNervey wife of our police magistrate, Thursday evening by a number of friends.

Mrs. Lottig entertained at a dinner party Monday. 16 guests were present.

Mr. Geo. Wilson and wife have left from his home town he will be kept within touch, as it were, through the pages of the Herald which George has requested forwarded to his new address there. We wish him success in his new undertakings.

The attempted jail break cost the two men who were arrested $50 and costs in Judge McNervey's court Monday.

Harry Norton has just returned from a hunting trip near St. Louis. Harry didn't have much luck with the ducks.

The River Grove business men's association contemplates the organization of a bowling league. About 4 teams will start with more to follow and it is hoped that next year all River Grove teams will combine into one league of our own.

Hark Ye! Hark Ye! The fire works are about to start. The starter in the race of progress is about to give the signal and the Herald in the offering is ready and raring to go. All it needs is the word. The River Grove business men's association has adopted resolutions and plans which with the cooperation of a wide awake press with a solid foundation will prove a splendid display. For months the Herald has attempted to show the necessity of such a move and although its articles have been misunderstood by some, they were never meant to offend. We, in River Grove intend to make 'em set up and take notice of what we can do when we want to. Many wonderful changes have taken place in the last few years, what was a short time ago, just a "suburb" is now a progressive, wide awake "town" with paved streets, schools, churches, a bank, theatre in fact everything a community needs to assure its future success.

The success of all local business organizations depends largely upon the advertising and news medium that serve to bring their activities before the public. In many cases where the distribution of the organizations in that community is short lived and deep thinking men with business ability soon fold up their tents and move to localities where the advertising medium has a solid foundation and good results are assured. What better opportunity, what better advantage has any business organization ever had than that which is River Grove's now.

A paper with a circulation such as the Herald can boast of, covering over a half century ago, founded a territory that is second to no other country newspaper in Illinois, bringing results from every edition published; these and many more are facts that any business organization cannot well afford to pass up. Let us give you the benefit of years of hard labor that built this paper from a small one sheet affair to a real live newspaper of today. Send in your subscription now.

Let the Children Make Silhouettes

A silhouette or outline portrait is very simple to draw and the drawing is an ideal pastime for a cold evening.

All that is necessary is a sheet of white paper to pin against the wall, a pencil and a light of some kind.

The one whose portrait is to be drawn sits between the light and the paper so that the shadow of her profile is thrown upon the screen.

The artist, urging his model to sit perfectly still, sketches the outline of the shadow with his pencil or crayon, and later cuts the silhouette out with knife or scissors.

Baby's head, daddy with his pipe, a sleeping kitten or even the cat, may be drawn easily. The outline may be outlined on yellow or orange colored paper, so when he is clipped he will be silhouetted in his natural color.

Americans Kiss A Queen's Hand

Many Americans who have been educated to believe that this is the land that first rocked the cradle of democracy have shuddered recently at accounts of a presentation to the charming Queen Marie of Rumania.

No matter how delightful the companionship of a Queen may be, why should Americans—born to appreciate the friendly hand clasp turn European overnight, bow, kiss an extended hand, and back away from the holy of holies in an undignified retreat?

As this was done by society, we who do not belong, may smile and say that the great middle class would not submit to such an ordeal—and yet we inwardly cannot feel sure of this until we too have an opportunity to kiss a queenly hand.

Would it not be gracious to practice first upon mother's hand, for after all, mother is the Queen of our American home—and no one would have to blush for us later were we to kiss her hand reverently.

Betty Barclay's Weekly Recipe

The only thing about Christmas and New Year's dinners that is not pleasing is that everything is so delicious we eat too generously.

We would never think of dispensing with our turkey, our potatoes or our mince pie—but too much carbohydrate and protein food does not rest well even upon rugged adult stomachs.

This Christmas, why not lessen the taxation upon digestive organs by using a lighter mincemeat for that necessary mince pie? Here is a recipe that shows how this may be done:

1 pound currants

2 apples

4 lemons

1/2 cup raisins

1/2 cup chopped nuts

1/2 cup melted butter

2 cups sugar

1 teaspoon each of salt, ground cinnamon, ground nutmeg, ground cloves, ground ginger and round allspice.

Squeeze juice from lemons and cook peel until soft. Put through meat-chopper and then rub thru sieve. Add chopped apples and remaining ingredients, mix well and store in jars. Use as a filling for your Christmas pie.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaessing and family left Saturday for Kalamazoo, Mich., to visit Mrs. Blaessing's parents. They sure enjoyed the trip in their new car.

The Sunday school children will have their Christmas program in church Sunday, Dec. 26 at 7 p. m. The day school children will have their program in church Christmas eve at 7 p. m. also.

Franklin Park Dept.

Friday afternoon, Dec. 17, the Woman's club gave their annual Christmas party for the children of the club members and their little friends. It was given in the Community church basement. 53 children attended. Each child was presented a toy. Games were played and refreshments served.

Miss Wilhelm's girls entertained the G. G. girls Tuesday evening with a party, Christmas tree, everything. Then they departed voting it the best meeting of the year.

A good natured crowd gathered at the Masonic Temple Thursday evening, Dec. 23, to enjoy the buncos party given by the Women's club for benefit of ex-service men. About $60 in cash was realized and 100 lbs of sugar, 25 lbs. butter and a pair of candy were donated. Hahn Brothers Laundry Co., donated the score card for buncos $25.00 will be given to the State fund to provide Christmas gifts for the boys in the Elgin hospital.

The Village Board will hold a special meeting at the village hall Monday evening, Dec. 27 to decide about paving Belmont ave., from the new river bridge west.

Edith Padlock suggests that to avoid the danger of crossing the C. M. & St. P. Ry. tracks on an angle that Pacific avenue be paved from Rose street to Manheim road making a curved connection at the west end. This would relieve the heavy traffic on the south side and shorten the road from Belmont avenue to the lake regions also give Franklin Park more paved road and help boom Franklin Park.

Our suggestion for the town hall block meets general approval.

Mrs. Jack Didier and James Fagan have been enjoying a visit from their mother, Mrs. Fagan of Owen, Wis.

Mr. Jas. J. Fitzgerald was injured by a fall from a box car Friday night. He was taken to the Hammond hospital.

The Minstrel given by the Leyden high school, Juniors and Seniors, Dec. 15 was splendidly put over. Each one did his part very well and the audience enjoyed it all very much. Some very promising talent was shown by several of the actors. Especial thanks is due Messrs. H. G. Taylor and Curtis McFall who gave so liberally of their time and talents to help make the entertainment a success.

Mr. and Mrs. John Rodger announce the birth of a daughter at Oak Park hospital, Dec. 18.

School closed Thursday, Dec. 23, for the holidays until Jan. 3. Teachers and pupils will enjoy their ten days freedom.

Master Vernon Laufer celebrated his 6th birthday Saturday. He had 17 little playmates in to enjoy the last party his mother prepared for them.

The proceeds of the buncos held last week are to be used for gifts for the comfort of the ex-service men in Elgin hospital. Reports of the conditions there are most depressing. A motion is on foot for an official investigation. The Woman's clubs of the state are behind this movement. It is hard to understand why men cannot have at least good plain food in plenty when $1.00 a day is allowed for each patient. Until permanent relief is given such small efforts as this, is all we can do. The committee in charge thanks their friends for their support. Sugar, butter, candy and other little extras will be taken to the boys.

Misses Katherine and Margaret McGowan entertained a large number of young folks at their home Tuesday evening. By 9:30 p. m. the front of the McGowan home was lined with cars. Games were played and dancing exhibitions received loud applause. Special mention is given to Mr. Vincent J. Killoran

Mr. Ed. Hennessey, Vincent Killoran, Charles Felix, John Killoran and Frank Shannon showed their domestic training and provided of great help to the hostesses in the kitchen.

The pretty girls present sang songs and helped entertain the guests.

At a late hour the crowd dispersed praising loudly Mrs. McGowan's cooking and the wonderful time and hospitality shown.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. Johnson of Minnesota, Messrs. John and Joseph Naples of Melrose Park, Mr. Felix of Chippewa Falls, Wis., Mr. Ed Hennessey of Indiana Harbor, Ind.

The Ladies Aid of the community M. E. church will meet Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 29 in the church basement. Mrs. Shebeck and Mrs. Wasson will be hostesses.

Several cases of whooping cough are reported in the village. It is to be deplored that this dread disease should menace the little children every year. When contracted in the fall the cough usually hangs on till spring.

It begins to look as though there will not be a white Christmas this year and that the mud will be so deep that Santa's reindeer will "get stuck." Wouldn't it be a good idea to send him word that he better come to Franklin Park in his aeroplane and then he can drop down with a parachute and thus avoid the muddy streets.

Those who risked injury to limbs and head from the icy pavements Sunday evening felt fully repaid while listening to the beautiful Christmas cantata rendered by the choir of the Community M. E. church. We have local talent to be proud of.

About 60 members of Franklin Park Camp 7054 Royal Neighbors of America gathered in the Public School Auditorium at their last regular meeting to elect officers for the ensuing year. Mountain Elevator

The great "lift" to carry aspiring tourists who would eschew the combined joys and labors of the mountain climber to the top of the rugged Wetterhorn, in Switzerland, is one of the most interesting devices in the world.

It goes up by two stages, each about 2,000 feet high. The passenger cages are lifted by a drum-wound rope and guided by two pairs of steel cables, each about an inch and three-quarters in diameter, and possessing a tensile strength of 33½ tons, 16 times the maximum put upon them. The cars are attached to these cables in such a manner as to avert a fall in case of the breaking of one of the lifting ropes. The cars, weighing 5½ tons, and carrying 20 passengers apiece, are lifted vertically at a speed of about five feet a second.

Lighted Candles Are Dangerous Says Marshal

Lighted candles are again banned in Illinois during the holiday season, according to State Fire Marshal John G. Gamber. On the taboo list are lighted candles on Christmas trees, in baskets of artificial flowers, in windows and in the hands of those taking part in Christmas pageants.

"Illinois has virtually abandoned the use of candles on Christmas trees," he said. "We do not permit it at church school or other public celebrations and have almost eliminated it in private homes. The danger of igniting the tree or the inflammable decorations has been demonstrated by a long list of fires and fatalities."

"We have discouraged the use of such recent novelties as the lighted candles in bouquets of artificial flowers because of danger of fire and we regard the lighted candle in the window as an absolute menace."

"Another grave danger is caused in pageants in which the participants carry lighted candles as they march around a tree. Usually there are little girls and in the past many a dress has been ignited. When this occurs there is usually a panic in the audience and the results are always serious."

"We have no desire to detract from the joy of the Christmas season, but desire to protect it from the sorrow of Christmas tragedy."

NORTHBROOK SCHOOL

Fourth and Fifth Grades

Our room sold $5.75 worth of Christmas stamps.

On Monday, we made Christmas gifts for our mothers.

Our Better Teeth Campaign has closed. Essays were written by the fifth grade children, in connection with their regular hygiene work. Richard Thormeyer received the award, a Colgate gift set, for having the best essay. It is as follows:

The structure of the tooth is the crown and the root. The first layer is the enamel which covers the exposed part, called the crown. The second layer is called dentine. The cementum covers the dentine in the gum.

The enamel is a hard brittle covering that covers the crown. If it is once broken, it can never be replaced and decay begins. If we do not brush and clean the enamel, it becomes stained.

Dentine is a softer substance, which can easily decay. It is the largest part of the tooth, but it decays very quickly. Aches and pains in a tooth are caused by decay. The decay starts in the enamel, then quickly goes through the dentine until it reaches the nerve. This is the cause of a tooth ache. This can be avoided by having the cavities filled by a dentist.

The correct way to brush the teeth is up and down, in preference to brushing them across. When we brush them across we push up the gums. It takes two minutes of good brushing to thoroughly cleanse the teeth and gums. Never allow anyone to use your tooth brush as disease germs may easily be carried from one mouth to another.

We should have a holder to keep our brushes in, so air can get at them and the bacteria cannot spread from one brush to another. When kept in a glass, it is a fine breeding place for bacteria. They should be cleaned before and after they are used. They should be boiled at least once a week.

The importance of the teeth is that they help the digestion. When we chew our food properly we mix the saliva with the food so that it is more easily digested and so more of the food can be used in building the body. Teeth are one of the most important parts of the body.

Richard Thormeyer, 5th Grade.

Official records of the general land office in this case showed that the 30,000 acres were once a part of an old Spanish ranch known as Rancho de Santiago. It was one of the early land grants made back in the eighteenth century by the Spanish crown to one of its subjects. Later similar grants were made by the government of Mexico to its citizens. When the United States won its war with Mexico in the late forties of the last century and acquired the territory now comprising the states of California, New Mexico and other contiguous land the treaty of peace between the two nations specifically provided that the United States should recognize and protect these old land grants. As a result ownership of all the old ranches held by Mexicans and Spaniards was not to be disturbed.

In the case of these claimants to the 30,000 acres, which were shown to be included in one of these ranches, the general land office was compelled to reject the claims on the ground that the tract was never public land, but private property, and had never been open to homestead entry to citizens of the United States. Thus another alien claimant vanished before the eyes of its holders.

The dreams of the white man to become as wealthy as Midas through some windfall dwindle into insignificance in comparison with those of the red man. Scarcely a single month passes that some Indian or group of Indians do not appear at the Interior department to present a claim to ownership of land and demand that it be recognized. Like the white man, the Indian invariably seeks real estate of almost inestimable value on which to base his claim.

A typical example occurred when a delegation of Indians representing the Pottawatomie tribe living near Mayette, Kan., called at the office of the secretary of the Interior on a recent occasion. The delegation was composed of two of the oldest Indians now living. One named Nunnunuskuk, who gave his age as one hundred and thirteen years. The other's name was Skiraway, and he asserted he was one hundred and ten years old. They had come to Washington to press the claim of their tribe to the ownership of a strip of land on the Lake Michigan waterfront in Chicago, now valued at approximately $35,000,000.

Owning by Pottawatomies.

According to their statements, the Pottawatomie tribe had occupied the land from its earliest history, the Indians making their living by fishing. Then the federal government removed the entire tribe to Davenport, Iowa, under guard of United States soldiers, where they remained three years. Later the Indians were taken to Council Bluffs, Iowa, the government keeping them there over nine years. They were again moved, this time to Mayette, Kan., where the tribe has remained ever since on an allotted reservation under guardianship of the United States.

The aged Indians also told the history of their claim to Lake Michigan shore lands which are not a part of the city of Chicago. They asserted that the land was given to the Lake Michigan Indians by a treaty with Gen. Anthony Wayne, signed at Greenville, Ill., in 1787. By a subsequent treaty the land was divided equally between a number of Indian tribes that fished along the lake. These tribes included the Chippewas and Mamis and others, the Pottawatomies receiving three sections of land as their share. They insisted that the Pottawatomies had never legally relinquished their title to these sections.

Under the law executive departments have authority to negotiate claims of Indian tribes against the United States. This power is vested exclusively in congress. On this account the secretary of the Interior was compelled to refer the two old Indians representing their tribe to congress, and they were instructed to present their claim before the Indian affairs committee of the senate and house.

This claim of the Pottawatomie tribe is modest, however, in comparison with the latest one of the Chippewa Indians of Michigan. On the basis of having originally owned half the entire state of Michigan, this Chippewa tribe is planning to file a claim for property valued at several billion dollars. Their demand consists of compensation from the United States not only for all the islands in Lakes Michigan, Superior, Ontario and St. Clair, but 16 feet of land on each side of every creek, river and stream in the state and 90 feet around the shore of every lake. This will include the whole waterfront of the city of Detroit. The claim of the Chippewa Indians will be filed in the United States Court of Claims for adjudication under a special act passed by congress. Any award made by the court will not affect the titles of the present holders of these lands in the state of Michigan, as the government will pay the claims in money. If granted in full, they will make every member of the Chippewa tribe a multimillionaire.

Basis of a Chicago Claim.

In presenting their petition to establish their ownership to this valuable property, the claimants submitted a mass of documentary evidence. They related that in 1803 Peter Johnson squatted or settled on the land, which was then on the outskirts of Chicago, through the use of his military bounty warrant. According to them, he established a bathhouse and operated it for a number of years. Many former prominent citizens of Chicago visited the Johnson bathhouse for a dip in the cool waters of Lake Michigan during the hot summer months of the late sixties and early seventies. Later Johnson is supposed to have disposed of the bathhouse and the land surrounding it, the present claim to ownership being based on this alleged transfer.

An investigation of this claim resulted in the discovery that a military bounty warrant had at one time been issued to Peter T. Johnson. It was found, however, that he did not locate on the site of his bathhouse on the shore of Lake Michigan. Instead he had transferred it, and a tract of public land to cover it was taken up in Florida to satisfy the warrant. A decision was rendered denying the claim. With this rejection the dream of these claimants to sudden acquisition of vast riches went up into thin air.

Another claim more comprehensive in scope and including a much larger area, was recently filed in which title to over 30,000 acres of valuable land was claimed. This real estate, also worth many millions, was located on the outskirts of the city of Los Angeles. It ran from the municipal limits of this California metropolis to the sea harbor of Los Angeles, known as San Pedro. Instead of a single claimant, there were 150 persons who insisted that they had been homesteaders on the tract a number of years ago and were, therefore, entitled to deeds covering the lands they had settled upon.

TRY FOR WEALTH IN LAND-CLAIMS

U. S. Deluged With Demands for Tracts Now Immensely Valuable.

Washington.—No better illustration of the great wealth to be acquired overnight can be found than the deluge of claims filed recently with the general land office of the Interior department to the ownership of valuable parcels of real estate located in the business centers of the larger American cities. The basis of these claims is that the nation's public domain is a part of the nation's heritage and that a nation's relative of the claimant had once settled upon it in the early pioneer days of the republic. Although the title has long since passed to others, the original settler either had never conveyed it or it had been transferred through inheritance, it is claimed.

All of the claims are filled with romance of the early history of the nation. Some go back as far as the time of the old land grants to the Spaniards in California. The drama of others is laid in the days just following the Civil war. Among the thousand soldiers who fought to preserve the Union in the Civil war was a private named Peter T. Johnson. At the end of the struggle Johnson returned to his home in Illinois. Shortly afterward he received a military bounty from the federal government as a reward for his services. Under this military bounty, Johnson had the right to select 160 acres of public land anywhere in the United States, have it surveyed, and then receive title to it.

Johnson's land warrant was the basis of one of the claims recently filed with Commissioner Spry to the ownership of metropolitan property of tremendous value. The land claimed consisted of 160 acres located in the vicinity of Erie, St. Clair and Illinois streets along the shore line of Lake Michigan in the very heart of the city of Chicago. This section is now built up with large warehouses, skyscrapers and other imposing structures on almost priceless ground. The building improvements alone represent millions of dollars of invested capital.

Basis of a Chicago Claim.

In presenting their petition to establish their ownership to this valuable property, the claimants submitted a mass of documentary evidence. They related that in 1803 Peter Johnson squatted or settled on the land, which was then on the outskirts of Chicago, through the use of his military bounty warrant. The dreams of the white man to become as wealthy as Midas through some windfall dwindle into insignificance in comparison with those of the red man. Scarcely a single month passes that some Indian or group of Indians do not appear at the Interior department to present a claim to ownership of land and demand that it be recognized. Like the white man, the Indian invariably seeks real estate of almost inestimable value on which to base his claim.

A typical example occurred when a delegation of Indians representing the Pottawatomie tribe living near Mayette, Kan., called at the office of the secretary of the Interior on a recent occasion. The delegation was composed of two of the oldest Indians now living. One named Nunnunuskuk, who gave his age as one hundred and thirteen years. The other's name was Skiraway, and he asserted he was one hundred and ten years old. They had come to Washington to press the claim of their tribe to the ownership of a strip of land on the Lake Michigan waterfront in Chicago, now valued at approximately $35,000,000.

Owning by Pottawatomies.

According to their statements, the Pottawatomie tribe had occupied the land from its earliest history, the Indians making their living by fishing. Then the federal government removed the entire tribe to Davenport, Iowa, under guard of United States soldiers, where they remained three years. Later the Indians were taken to Council Bluffs, Iowa, the government keeping them there over nine years. They were again moved, this time to Mayette, Kan., where the tribe has remained ever since on an allotted reservation under guardianship of the United States.

The aged Indians also told the history of their claim to Lake Michigan shore lands which are not a part of the city of Chicago. They asserted that the land was given to the Lake Michigan Indians by a treaty with Gen. Anthony Wayne, signed at Greenville, Ill., in 1787. By a subsequent treaty the land was divided equally between a number of Indian tribes that fished along the lake. These tribes included the Chippewas and Mamis and others, the Pottawatomies receiving three sections of land as their share. They insisted that the Pottawatomies had never legally relinquished their title to these sections.

Under the law executive departments have authority to negotiate claims of Indian tribes against the United States. This power is vested exclusively in congress. On this account the secretary of the Interior was compelled to refer the two old Indians representing their tribe to congress, and they were instructed to present their claim before the Indian affairs committee of the senate and house.

This claim of the Pottawatomie tribe is modest, however, in comparison with the latest one of the Chippewa Indians of Michigan. On the basis of having originally owned half the entire state of Michigan, this Chippewa tribe is planning to file a claim for property valued at several billion dollars. Their demand consists of compensation from the United States not only for all the islands in Lakes Michigan, Superior, Ontario and

MT. PROSPECT Watch It Grow F. L. H. LUEDERS, Editor

Merry Christmas to all, "Peace on Earth Good Will Toward Mankind" is the way we started out this week. Sunday evening at 7 p. m. our Chamber of Commerce had their first Annual Christmas Festival with an extra large attendance considering the weather. Our school children sang two Christmas Carols, "Come All Ye Faithful" and Holy Night Silent Night, Rev. J. E. A. Mueller gave an address that was short but directly to the point.

Santa Claus was present and all the folks at the celebration received a package as a gift from the Mt. Prospect merchants, it is only fair that we mention the merchants and thank them very kindly for making this celebration possible. The merchants who did their bit are, Frank Baldwin, Ed. L. Busse, Wm. Busse & Son, Wm. Busse Jr., Mory Bakery, Mt. Prospect State Bank, Lester Hener, Wm. A. Horstman, Rudolph Kruse, Fred Meeske and Albert Willie.

Every Merchant had their window displays the best we have ever seen in Mt. Prospect, some are very novel indeed and it is worth everyone's while to watch the windows of our various merchants. Wm. Horstman has a window in which is displayed the "First Christmas" one that is of real interest to our school children.

Everyone of our citizens surely should enjoy a real Christmas this year as we have (as a whole) made considerable progress and I believe the entire Citizenry of Mt. Prospect joins the editor in wishing our village officials a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Chief Mulso has been real busy the past few weeks and from the indications present he will be a busy man for quite a little while to come.

Have you noticed we have another Realtor operator in our village, Bert H. Landermilk is subdividing the Pohlman farm on the Northwest highway and has selected a rather catchy name for his subdivision, "Morning Side Gardens." Mr. Landermilk is the seventh Realtor to come to our village, are you not proud of the fact that you live in a village that attracts attention.

Please remember that there will be services in church Christmas eve and also Christmas day. Join with one another and celebrate Christmas in the proper way by going to church, to listen to the real Christmas story as told by the pastor in his sermon, it is one that is always new and true yet it is almost 2000 years old.

The silent but ever busy president of the Chamber of Commerce, Albert Willie, does not talk very much but is always active and planning for our C. of C. to do. The Yule season is here and we are all happy it has come, as it is always a pleasant time of the year when all people are friends and greet each other with a real cheer and have a pleasant word for each other, this is something we should carry with us all thru the year and be at peace with each other, let us forget factions and friction and all put our shoulders to the wheel of progress and make it always go forward even though we sometimes feel we would like to do otherwise it is always wise to look ahead and face a problem, meet it and solve it, but let no one person carry the entire burden divide it and then stand united to make our village the best spot on earth to live in, true we have had no serious misunderstanding and we have gotten along wonderful but let us keep it up and we will not be stopped by anything.

Have you noticed the Christmas tree, on Main street and Northwest highway, this is perhaps a small tree but as a larger could not be secured in the short space of time after it was decided to carry out the program this is the best that can be done, but our C. of C. have promised to provide a larger tree next year so we will be perfectly satisfied with the one we have.

Band of Thugs Attempt Robbery Wheeling Garage

Knocked down and beaten into submission by twelve masked hold up men, Harvard Bier, night mechanic of Gemmiel's Triangle Garage, Wheeling, outwitted the guard placed over him, ran for aid at the police station, thus preventing the wholesale ransacking of the entire garage.

About three o'clock Saturday morning, December 11, two automobiles drew up and stopped at the filling station. Bier came out of the garage and at the request of the occupants filled the gasoline tanks. Twelve or more men tumbled out of the two cars and overpowered Bier, and dragged him into the office of the garage. Here they attempted to force him to open the cash register, and upon his refusal they beat him severely over the head and body with black jacks and clubs. Several of the raiding party then went to the rear of the garage to get cars ready to drive away; it evidently being their intention to take as many cars as there were men with them.

At this time, Bier who was left lying on the floor in the office with the rest of the men, saw his chance, while they were attempting to force the cash register open with a pair of scissors, to slip out of the door. Several shots from pistols served to hasten his journey down the street to the police headquarters where the necessary aid was secured.

Before the hastily formed posse could arrive at the garage, loud reports from open mufflers could be heard receding in the distance. No further trace of the hold-up gang could be found.

This young man who displayed such timely courage in the face of odds was severely burned Tuesday night, December 14, in the office of a garage. After fixing a gasoline tank on a Ford, Bier entered the office of the garage to get a cigarette. In lighting it, the flame of the match came into contact with the gasoline that was spilled on his arms and body. His clothing immediately ignited and before the flames could be extinguished, he was severely burned. Dr. Larson was immediately called and after first aid treatment, Bier was placed in the Wheeling hospital.

Word was received here Sunday morning of the sudden illness of Mrs. Kate Beto of Park Ridge, and a former resident of this vicinity. Later reports stated that but little change in her condition was visible but all her old neighbors and friends wish her a successful recovery.

The children's exercises in St. Matthews church Christmas Eve will begin at 6 p. m. Services on Christmas Day will be in German and second Christmas Day in English.

After the splendid success of the play, "The Path Across The Hill," recently given in St. Matthews school hall, a request that the play be repeated in St. Andrew's school, Park Ridge, in the near future, was tendered the cast and committee in charge. It was decided to comply with the request, but the exact dates will not be announced until later. This second presentation of the play will enable all of those who were unable to attend the other performances, to see the play in Park Ridge.

To you members of the Maine Local of the C. C. T. Because furnace heated air naturally rises, more than 60% of the AVOIDABLE heat-leakage in an uninsulated house occurs through the roof.

This roof is solidly built... but it leaks heat and cold. None of the usual roof materials, when used alone, effectively keep in furnace heat in winter or shut out sun heat in summer.

This seven-sixteenth inch layer of Celotex Insulating Lumber shuts out heat and cold more effectively than all of the materials shown in the roof at the left combined.

Lining your attic with Celotex more than doubles the protection offered by a roof of usual construction. It will make your home more comfortable all year 'round and save money.

Tests show startling facts about your house!

Heat and cold leak through supposedly well-built roofs at a terrific rate. End this discomfort and waste by lining your attic with Celotex. It will save in fuel money more than it costs.

SCIENCE has made important discoveries about the usual building materials! Accurate laboratory tests prove that wood, brick, plaster, wall-boards, shingles, roofing materials, etc., when used alone, offer too little resistance to the passage of heat and cold. Careful experiments in hundreds of homes show that there is an avoidable heat loss of from 25% to 35% right through the walls and roofs of homes built with these materials alone.

Solid construction is not enough. A special heat-stopping, or insulating material is needed. Now, this protection is available for every home, new or old.

Celotex Insulating Lumber effectively stops the passage of heat and cold. It shuts out wind and dampness, quiets noise. The broad Celotex boards are stronger in walls than wood lumber.

in winter, cooler in summer, stronger and about $\frac{1}{3}$ more economical to heat. They have set a new standard of American building practice.

LINE YOUR ATTIC with Celotex. Even if your home was built before Celotex was available, you can still enjoy many of these advantages by lining your attic with this amazing lumber.

While attic lining cannot effect the same results as complete house insulation, it gives protection where it is most needed. The roof is the most exposed, yet the thinnest and least protected part of your house. Also, because heated air rises, more than 60% of the avoidable heat-leakage in an uninsulated house is through the roof.

SAVES MORE than it costs. Lining your attic with Celotex is not a big job or an expensive job. You simply nail the broad, light boards right to the studding and rafters. Enough

Already more than 119,000 new homes have been built with Celotex. These homes are warmer

Celotex to line your attic will cost you very little. And Celotex will more than pay for its cost in the fuel money it saves.

Celotex also converts your old attic into a comfortable, livable room. Its golden-tan color and rough-textured surface make an attractive wall finish... or you can decorate it in many ways. There are also many other places where Celotex is the ideal material for redecorating, repairing or remodeling.

Ask your architect, contractor or lumber dealer to tell you more about this amazing lumber. All lumber dealers can supply Celotex. Also ask about the $200 gold bond now issued on all Celotex-insulated homes.

Meanwhile, send the coupon below for the free Celotex Building Book. It tells you how to use Celotex in old and new homes alike.

They fought like the devils they really were.

One of them was on me immediately, bounding over the boulders with screeches that split the night. His knife and hatchet cut circles around my head—then chopped at my bowels. His activity was extraordinary, and he fought better than I, for he knew his weapons, and they were strange to me.

It was the realization of this which saved me. Fending awkwardly with knife or hatchet against a foe whose handling of them was the result of lifelong training, I was at a disadvantage.

So I changed the tomahawk to my left hand, and grasped the knife by the hilt as if it were a sword, thrusting with it point first instead of slashing as the Indian did. And now my skill at fence was in my favor.

The Cahnuga's knife was no longer than mine. We were on equal terms—or rather the advantage inclined toward me. Bewildered showed in the Indian's face. He did not understand this fighting with passes and parries and swift, stabbing assaults.

My chance came the next time he charged me, goaded into desperation by a smashing blow at his head with the tomahawk, and as he lifted his own hatchet to guard, I thrust for his belly, parried his knife and ripped him open.

His death yell was in my ears as I leaped over his body and looked to see how my comrades were doing. Ta-wan-nears had just killed his man and was running to the help of Peter, who had two assailants on his hands. As Ta-wan-nears came up, the Dutchman closed with one, dashed the defending weapon aside and grasped the struggling savage in his powerful arms. The last Cahnuga turned to flee, but Ta-wan-nears did not even attempt to pursue him. Without any appearance of haste the Seneca balanced his tomahawk, drew back his arm and hurled it after the fugitive. The keen blade crushed the man's skull before he had passed from the circle of firelight, and Ta-wan-nears sauntered across and scalped him.

"This time Ta-wan-nears did not miss, brother," he observed to me as I watched with fascinated horror the bloody neatness with which he dispatched his task.

Peter brought up his captive and tossed the man down in front of us.

"Oof, that was a good fight!" he commented placidly.

"Why a prisoner, Peter?" asked Ta-wan-nears.

"We will ask him of der Doom Trail," returned Corlaer.

He jerked the man to his feet.

"Where is der Doom Trail?" he demanded.

The Cahnuga, badly shaken though he was, drew himself erect and folded his arms across his painted chest.

"The Rat can go to the torture stake and not answer that question, Corlaer," he said quite slumg.

"We will take you to the nearest village and let you make good four boast," threatened Ta-wan-nears.

The Cahnuga smiled.

"If I told you, none the less should I suffer at the stake," he said, "for the Ga-go-sa Ho-nun-sa-ta (Mistress of the False Faces) knows all. Do your worst, Chief of the Long House."

A tinge of mockery colored his voice.

"Be sure that whatever you do you cannot equal the ingenuity of the Ga-go-sa. Yes, I think you will come to know more about them some day. Inquisitor, I seem to see pictures in the firelight of a stake and a building with a tower and a bell that rings, and many of the Ga-go-sa dance around you, and your pain is very great. Aye, you are shrieking like a woman; you—"

He sprang, not at the Seneca but at me. His hands were around my throat before I could move. His teeth gnashed at my face. A gout of blood, thick and warm, deluged me. The next thing I remembered was seeing Ta-wan-nears bending over me.

"My brother is whole?" he asked anxiously.

"Yes," I said, sitting up and rubbing a very sore throat, "except that I shall not be able to swallow for a time."

BUT, HENRY, THE CHILDREN SHOULD LEARN TO PLAY. CONNIE COULD HELP JERRY WITH HIS SAXAPHONE

SAY, FOR THE LOVE O' PETE, HOW CAN I GET OMAHA WITH YOU BELLERIN' ON THAT FOOL CONTRAPTION? THIS IS SILENT NIGHT FER YOU KIDS, AN' YOU'RE GETTIN' TUNED-OUT RIGHT NOW. I WANT THIS PLACE QUIET!

WHAT HO! CRIES THE BRIGHT YOUNG MAN, FINDING A PIANO FOR SALE 'ATYOUR OWN PRICE'. WELL, THAT'S THE PEANUT'S WISHBONE, CONNIE. LET'S HOP OVER AND HAVE A LOOK.

YES, SUH! I ALWAYS SAID THE HAPPIER PLACE IN THE WORLD IS HOME, SWEET HOME. NOW I'VE GOT THE TIME, I'VE GOT THE PLACE, AN' THIS LITTLE SCHOOL-MA'M CERTAINLY IS THE GIRL. ON WITH THE DANCE, LET JOY BE UNREFINED, AS THE FELLER SAYS.

is used by other nations than the Iroquois approached from upstream, and their occupants camped beside us.

These Indians were Messesagues, whose country lay between the two great inland seas, the Erie and Huron lakes. They were on their way to Fort Orange or Albany to trade their winter catch of furs, which lay baled in the canoes.

They told Ta-wan-nears they had had trouble with the Sieur de Tonty, commander of the French trading post of Le De Troit (Detroit, Mich.), which had been established in their country; and that in consequence De Tonty had been obliged to shift their trade to the English. Ta-wan-nears encouraged them in this design and described to them the high quality and quantity of the goods they might expect to get in exchange for their furs at Albany.

On the fourth day the trail abandoned the headwaters of the Mohawk, fast shallowing in depth, and headed westward across the mile-wide divide of land which separates the waters flowing into the Mohawk and Hudson rivers from those flowing into Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence river of Canada.

I had my first view of the long houses of the Iroquois at the Onondaga Castle, Ga-na-a-lo-hale "A head on a pole!" They were impressive buildings, sixty, eighty, one hundred and sometimes one hundred and twenty feet in length and from twelve to fifteen or twenty feet wide. We went as a matter of course to the lodgings of the Onondaga Wolves, of whom Ta-wan-nears, according to the Iroquois code, was a blood brother; and they placed at our disposal a guest chamber, the first next to the entrance of the Ga-na-sote (Bark house), together with all the firewood and food which we required and an aged squaw to cook and wait upon us.

From the Onondaga Castle the Great Trail bore westward past De-sa-da-yah (Deep Springs), France lay on the boundaries of the Onondagas, whose beautiful valley, with its mirror lake, was the fairest country I have ever seen unless it be the matchless home of the Senecas. The trail led us through the three villages of the tribe, which were scattered along the banks of the Onondaga river northward of the lake.

It was a rich country which we traversed, a country fit to be the home of a race of warriors. The people we met, in the villages where we sometimes slept and ate or along the shaded spot of the trail, were pleasant and courteous. They eyed me curiously, but there was never any unseemly disregard of manners. Even the children were polite and hospitable.

We eloped that night in the Cayuga village, and in the morning forded the foot of the lake and pursued the trail westward again until it emerged upon the north bank of the Seneca river, which we followed to the village of Ga-nun-dagwa (site of Canandaigua, N. Y.), on the lake of that name.

Now we are in the country of the Seneca, and I saw Ta-wan-nears, when we started the next morning. "You have seen the homes of all the other tribes, save only the Tuscaroras, who live to the south of the Onondagas; but none of them is so fair as the valley of Gen-ne-se-yah (literally, "The Beautiful Valley") where my brethren dwell."

Henry Smith of Grand Rapids, who never has walked a step in his life, is the successful manager of a $200,000 fur business which employs 75 men.

"I'd have liked to work in this field but I guess it's just as well that I can't," Smith, who is 63 years old, smiled.

"Field work has a way of keeping you so busy you don't get to study markets, reports and other things that give a man the inside track on real business farming."
